The Effect of Entrepreneurial Orientation and Market Orientation on Business Performance Mediated by Marketing Capability on Culinary MSMEs

This study aims to analyze the significance of the effect of entrepreneurial orientation and market orientation on business performance mediated by marketing capability for culinary MSMEs. The research data was processed and analyzed using descriptive statistics and statistical software smartPLS 3. The research was quantitative and the sample technique used was non-probability purposive sampling of 124 culinary MSME business respondents. The limitations of the existing research are the limitations of data collection and the results obtained from the research can only be used in the context of culinary MSME entrepreneurs. In the future, researchers can choose more general respondents and research fields other than culinary.
