The regression model of the data analysis does not exhibit both multicollinearity and heteroscedasticity with the value of each variable  $>$  than 0.05. The result of Multiple Linear Regression concluded that the constant value in this study is -2.051, indicates every 1% increase in independent variables, which will cause an increase per 0.147, 0.396, and 0.258 respectively in the dependent variable.
