THE EFFECT OF CELEBRITY ENDORSEMENT ON CONSUMER BEHAVIOR IN MARKETPLACE SHOPEE

This study aims to examine the effect of celebrity endorsement on consumer behavior in the shopee marketplace. In recent years, Indonesians have tended to switch to making online purchases through marketplaces that are already available in Indonesia. The development of the era to the digitalization era encourages big brands and small businesses to buy and sell in the marketplace, one of the leading marketplaces is Shopee. Since its founding in 2015, shopee itself has been ranked first in the list of the most visitor marketplaces in 2019 – 2020 quarter IV. However, in 2021 shopee was overthrown by his rival, dropping to level 2 in the list of the most visited marketplaces, this was triggered by the occurrence of advertising competition in the marketplace in Indonesia. Therefore, research is needed on the effect of celebrity endorsement on consumer behavior in the Shopee marketplace. In this study, a quantitative approach was used with the collection method utilizing an electronic questionnaire through Google Forms which obtained a total of 160 respondents. The measurement model and structural model in this study were analyzed using SmartPLS 3.0. Respondents in this study are Indonesian people who live in Greater Jakarta and have seen Shopee advertisements and have shopped in the Shopee marketplace. The measurement model consists of validity and reliability tests. The structural model consists of R-square test, T-statistics, P-value and test the relationship of variables in the framework of this research. In this study, it shows that the attractiveness of celebrity endorser does not have a significant effect on ad recall by consumers. The attractiveness of celebrity endorser variable has a significant influence on the purchase intention of consumers. The variable credibility of celebrity endorser has a significant effect on ad recall by consumers. The credibility of the endorser variable has a significant influence on the purchase intention of consumers.
