The influence of brand image, service quality, service convenience, product innovation, and word of mouth on repurchase intention at Ace Hardware in Jabodetabek.

(XIX + 128 pages; 24 table; 7 figures; 6 appendices)

This study aims to explore the factors influencing repurchase intention among Ace Hardware customers in the Greater Jakarta area (Jabodetabek) by integrating service quality, service convenience, brand image, product innovation, and word of mouth as independent variables, with customer satisfaction as a mediating variable. The research employed a quantitative method with a survey approach involving 235 respondents selected through purposive sampling. Data were collected using a questionnaire based on a 5-point Likert scale and analyzed using the partial least squares-structural equation modeling (PLS-SEM) method. The results indicate that brand image, service quality, service convenience, product innovation, and word of mouth have a positive and significant influence on repurchase intention, including the relationships between service quality and service convenience mediated by customer satisfaction. Based on these findings, Ace Hardware is recommended to enhance service quality, transaction convenience, brand image, product innovation, and encourage positive customer reviews to improve customer satisfaction and loyalty. For future research, it is suggested to expand the scope of the study to a national level, consider moderation variables, and explore customer behavior in the context of online shopping to obtain more comprehensive and relevant results.
