

Chapter V

Closure

This chapter brings the reader to the conclusion and the answer of the problems that the writer faced during the observation.

5.1 Conclusion

From the description above, the writer would conclude and answer the problems:

1. How can an assessment process be made to help students to feel successful?
2. How the assessments can be an effective way for the students' improvement in marks?

Various assessments can help and become an effective way if we as the teachers always monitor and control our students' progress regularly. From this observation, the writer found that guide students continuously both in informal assessment and formal assessments can increase students' desire to learn. Besides, the writer had to reflect day by day after teaching to improve her teaching in order to give the best result. The writer still needs to consider students and mentor feedback.

5.2 Suggestion and recommendation

As the teacher, we have to have a humble heart to accept any comments and suggestions for our improvement. Assessment is a good way to know how far our students know and absorb the lesson in the classroom. We as the teacher, is also a student who still learns more and more.
