ANALYSIS OF THE INFLUENCE OF PERSON JOB FIT, PERSON ORGANIZATIONAL FIT, PERCEIVED SUPERVISOR SUPPORT AND WORK ENVIRONMENT ON EMPLOYEE LOYALTY MEDIATED BY JOB SATISFACTION AT LYD GROUP BALI

Employees are the most important asset in a company or organization because they are one of the company's driving wheels to achieve goals based on the company's vision and mission. So companies need to pay attention to various aspects of human resources in their company. Researchers used several variables, namely person job fit, person organizational fit, perceived supervisor support, work environment, job satisfaction and employee loyalty. In this research, the method used is non-probability sampling. This research was aimed directly at all employees at the LID Group in accordance with the criteria required by researchers and the data was collected using an online questionnaire to make it easier for researchers to collect data. This research uses SEM (Structural Equation Modeling) analysis with the PLS-SEM application. The results of this research show that the mediating effect of job satisfaction on each independent variable's relationship to the dependent variable is positive and significant. The results of this research are useful for companies as evaluation material for the variables that have the smallest results to become topics that will be evaluated by the company in the future.
